Introduction

Businesses are beginning to realise that good environmental performance can have positive effects on their profits, reputation and society as a whole.

Being 'green' is not just a moral and social obligation for a business. It can also bring great financial benefits.

Environmental Awareness provides a basic introduction to the main environmental issues facing businesses today, and suggests various ways employees can change their habits in the workplace – to reduce waste and promote greener practices.

The course helps staff to be more environmentally aware, and in turn it will help businesses to establish and maintain good environmental practices.

Who is the course for?

This course is appropriate for any member of staff, but particularly those who have no previous knowledge of the subject and limited work experience.

The easy to follow, step-by-step format of this course means people can work at their own pace. No prior knowledge or experience is needed and there are no formal entry requirements.

What will you get from this course?

When you have completed this course, you will be able to:

- understand the importance of environmental issues
- explain the reasons for, and effects of, these issues
- describe how we are damaging our planet
- highlight ways in which you can reduce the negative effects of your actions and make a positive difference to the environment.

Course features

Environmental Awareness uses text, illustrations and animation to illustrate its main points. At the end of the course, a multiple choice test checks your knowledge and understanding. You can take this test as many times as you want.

You can start this course straight away and access it at any time, providing you have access to a computer with an internet connection. The course is available for six months from the date first accessed.
